

VARNA LIMITED

Incorporated over five decades ago in 1961, Varna Limited is the very first flexible packaging company to be established in Sri Lanka. The company was founded by Sri Lankan entrepreneur and press tycoon Esmond Wickremesinghe while he was also Chairman of the Lake House, home to the Associated Newspapers of Ceylon, the country's oldest publication company.

Over the next few decades, Varna evolved into a large scale automated operation to become one of the largest flexible packaging manufacturers in Sri Lanka, having invested in the latest cutting-edge technologies such as 9-color gravure printing, three-layer film extrusion, solvent-based, solvent-less and water-based lamination.

ISO and HACCP certified, we pride ourselves in nurturing highly skilled and motivated individuals to produce the best in quality products in accordance with international quality and safety standards. Innovation and efficiency are not only encouraged, but recognized and rewarded as well.

At the core of Varna's success lies the simple principle of perfection, a constant throughout our journey across the past five decades. This philosophy has been instilled into our people, products and process, leading to Varna's recognition for its superior, unparalleled customer service and satisfaction.

In keeping with the evolving conditions of the industry, we have ventured into bag making, which includes stand-up pouch, zipper, side-sealed, centre-sealed and three-layer exclusion machines. This diversification into other packaging products and future investments in more advanced technologies ensures that Varna remains at the forefront of flexible packaging in Sri Lanka, while making our brand presence felt across the Asia Pacific region.
